PUBLIC ROADS

EXPENSE SHOULD BE DIVIDED

Railroads Should Share With Farmer Cost of Building and Proper Maintenance of Roads.

By HOWARD H. GROSS.
In a large sense the building of a road should be a local matter; that is, no community should have good roads forced upon them, and the building of the roads should not begin until the majority of the people living in a community want to undertake it. Let the voters of the township or the county press the button that puts the machinery in action.

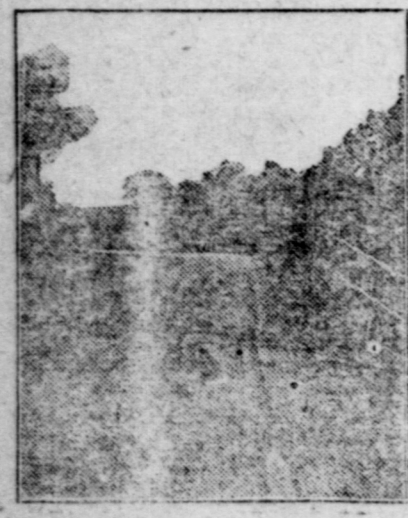

It also would be well to remember that the roads are public property and belong to everyone. The farmers ought not to pay all the taxes for building and maintaining the roads, they are the feeders for the railway lines. It is all important to the ways that the highways shall be kept in condition so the delivery of freight will be expedited. There is no reason why the railroads should not be taxed to help build the county roads. The same may be said of the manufacturer and the city merchant who are doing business with the farmers; their interests are bound up in his interests. If one suffers, both suffer. The United States is a great big family, and what we need is family prosperity; those things done that make for the best good of all concerned. There is nothing that contributes more to this than good highways. They enrich country life and make the farm home more pleasant. It would be hard to conceive of a more delightful existence than to live upon a good farm with all modern conveniences—light, heating and sanitation—located upon a well-built highway, and therefore accessible to the market town at any day in the year, the trip being made speedily and with comfort.

Investigation shows that at least four-fifths of the traffic on the highways passes over about one-fourth of the road mileage; that certain roads have heavy traffic. These are the ones that need the first attention and should be permanently improved. We find the same thing in our railway systems. Take the trunk lines. Here is a great city where trains are moving every thirty minutes, and with an enormous traffic and wear. These roads must have heavy rails, well ballasted and carefully maintained, while a pioneer road has a single track with light rails and ballast—it is the only one possible to build for the small traffic that will at first come to it, but as the traffic increases so the physical condition of the road is correspondingly improved to meet the requirements. The highway in the central west do not meet the needs of the people, but the people do not always realize this. We are too apt to get along with what we have, without looking to getting something better. One of the surprising things about this whole road movement is that one state will have a large amount of splendid roads and the adjoining state few, if any. Indiana and Illinois are notable instances of this. Nearly 40 per cent. of the "Hoosier" highways are improved and most of these are splendid roads, while in Illinois the percentage is seven or eight per cent. Can anyone imagine a person why the people of Indiana can afford good roads, while their neighbors in Illinois cannot? This is an absurd situation.

DAIRY

HEAVILY TINNED MILK PAILS

All Crevices and Seams Should Be Flushed Full and Smoothed With Solider—Use No Wood.

The best milking pail is the one so constructed that it will reduce to a minimum the amount of dirt falling into the milk during the process of milking. The small top pail may have some objections, but its advantages are so evident that it is rapidly being adopted by most of our prominent dairymen.

All milk utensils should be heavily tinned and as free from seams as it is possible to get them. All crevices and seams should be flushed full and smoothed with solider. If rails and cans of this kind cannot be purchased, take them to a local tinner and have him fill up all crevices with solider. Wood is unsatisfactory because it is porous, making it almost impossible to keep them sweet and clean. For this reason they should have no place in the dairy.

To thoroughly clean milk utensils they should be rinsed with cold water to remove all particles of milk. Then they should be scrubbed with a brush in warm water, after which they should be steamed or at least rinsed in boiling water. No wiping cloth should be used. Sunlight is one of the best disinfectants and when possible all utensils should be given the benefit of good sunlight and pure air.

GOOD LIGHT FOR DAIRY BARN

Considering Results Secured From Putting in Windows, Expense Is Small—Provide Fresh Air.

It has been learned by the experience of expert dairymen all over the country that every cow should have four square feet of light and that the windows should be arranged to allow an even distribution of light throughout the barn. Considering the results, the expense of putting in windows is small. The increase in cost in a dairy barn 30 or 40 feet long is from $20 to $25. The system of ventilation commonly used consists of two sets of flues. The inlets or fresh air flues should be near the roof and not more than ten feet apart. The greater the number the more effective the ventilation, since they enable the fresh air to displace the foul air more rapidly. The outlets should be placed to provide the quickest escape for the foul air.

DAIRY NOTES

A good milch cow never becomes rolling fat.

Raise and keep all heifer calves from the best cows.

It ought to hurt any man's conscience to sell dirty milk.

Milk suffers contamination more quickly than any other food.

Treat the cows kindly and they will repay you in dollars and cents.

The man with plenty of alfalfa is not worrying about bran at $25 a ton.

Dairymen build up the soil for the reason that it takes little of its substance.

The owner of a good milk cow cannot afford to sell her at twice best prices.

One way to be sure of a good dairy herd is to raise it yourself and know what you've got.

None of the new fangled churns have yet put the old-fashioned barrel churn on the shelf.

The sire is more than half the herd. Be sure that the sire heading your herd will transmit dairy characteristics.

FARM STOCK

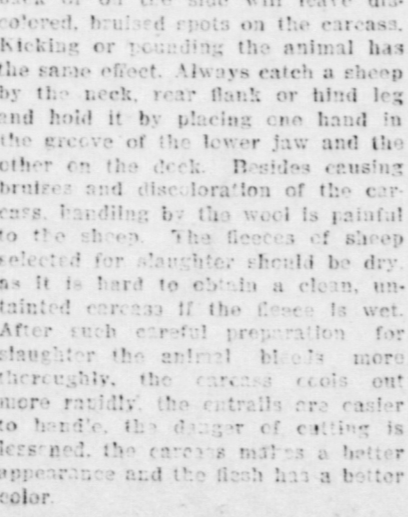

SHEEP BEFORE SLAUGHTERING

Animals Should Be Given All Water They Want to Drink—Prevent Over-Heating and Excitement.

By T. G. PATTERSON, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.

Whenever possible it is advisable to take the sheep off feed for from twelve to twenty-four hours before slaughtering, with the exception of lambs, which will fatten much if taken from the dams and will consequently be in a feverish condition when slaughtered. As with all stock, however, sheep should be given all the water they want to drink. All ways handle the sheep quietly so that they do not become excited and over heated before killing. Special care should be taken to see that sheep are not handled by the wool. Pulling the fleece by grabbing a sheep on the back or on the side will leave discolored, bruised spots on the carcass.

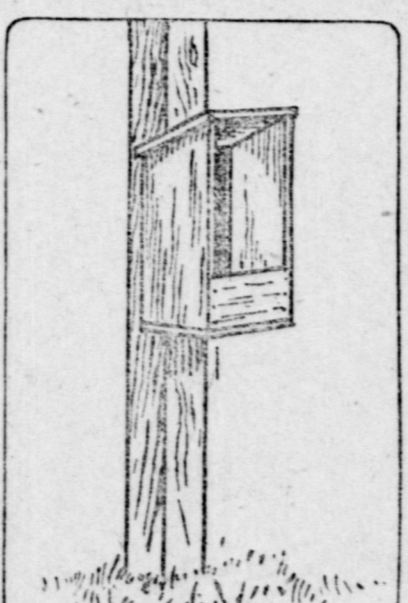

Kicking or bounding the animal has the same effect. Always catch a sheep by the neck, rear flank or hind leg, and hold it by placing one hand in the groove of the lower jaw and the other on the neck. Besides causing bruises and discoloration of the carcass, handling by the wool is painful to the sheep. The fleeces of sheep selected for slaughter should be dry, as it is hard to obtain a clean, untainted carcass if the fleece is wet. After such careful preparation for slaughter the animal should be more thoroughly, the carcass cooled out more rapidly, the entrails are easier to handle, the danger of eating is lessened, the carcass makes a better appearance and the flesh has a better color.

Practice of Placing Salt on Ground Is Another Little Box Fastener to Try It Out.

The practice of salting stock periodically on the ground is antiquated. It takes too much time if done often enough, it wastes salt and the way it is done, usually, the stock do not get enough salt.

I have a salt box somewhat like the enclosed sketch. I used to fasten them to trees, but have abandoned this practice, because the salt gets out and in time usually kills the tree. Now I set a post and nail the box to this, or can sometimes set them in the rock piles of which I have several on the place, says a writer in the Southern Agriculturist. Sometimes I fasten the box to a post in the fence.

Handy Salt Box.

I visit the box often enough to never let it run empty while stock is in the field.

CARE OF HORSES AND MULES

Feed Mares Generously and Don't Overtax Them—Active Whiplash and Abuse Are Injurious.

Go easy with the work mares when they are suckling a young colt, hence doing double duty. This is exhaustive and depleting. Feed the mares generously and don't overtax them.

See that the hired man attends to his power to help fill the barns with grain and forage and incidentally to make the year a profitable one to you.

A too active whiplash, loud and abusive language, jerking the reins, flitting harness, irregular feeding and watering, filthy stables, galled backs or shoulders, overloading and over-driving can reduce the $200 horse or mule to a $75 one.

Always let the mare cool off before she suckles her colt—otherwise a possible attack of indigestion for the youngster.

Draft Horses for Farms.

The draft horse does the work on the farm the most satisfactorily and with less expense and worry; sells higher and more rapidly; costs less to get him ready for market; and it costs less time and labor to train him.

PROPER ATTENTION TO EWES

Severe Losses Result From Attempting to Handle Early Lambs Without Accommodations.

The flock owner who breeds his ewes to lamb during the late winter and early spring months should provide favorable conditions at the right time. Severe losses result from attempting to handle early lambs without having adequate accommodations to provide comfort for the flock, writes L. J. Merrieth in Homestead. The first essential to success in handling early lambs is a comfortable and well arranged sheep barn. It should be well lighted, dry and properly ventilated, and there must be plenty of pens and facilities for caring for each ewe as soon as she shows evidence of lambing.

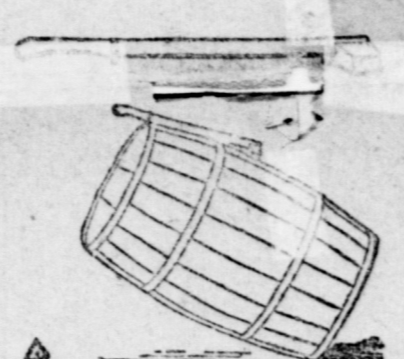

We have found it desirable to keep on hand an adequate supply of light partitions and managers for constructing pens for the ewes as fast as needed. In this way the flock can have the run of the whole sheep barn or it can be quickly subdivided as the occasion may demand. It will be found very convenient to have a light manager that can be made fast to the corner of each pen, so that roughage may be fed regularly without being trampled under foot and made unpalatable.

Ewes should have plenty of good, nutritious food during the winter, not only to maintain a good flesh condition, but to nourish the unborn lambs. Roughage alone is not enough. A high ration of grain should be fed regularly. A proper mixture of oats, barley, corn and peas will give good results. For roughage, clover or alfalfa hay and ensilage will furnish about the right proportions of bulk and succulence.

EASY WAY TO LIFT BARRELS

Simple Device Shown in Illustration Herewith Will Be Found to Be Quite Convenient.

Where many barrels are to be lifted the following simple device will prove of great value. Including the six-inch hand grips, the handle is about two feet long. Just below the hand grip a metal hook an inch wide is fastened. This fits over the rim of the barrel. At the lower end of the handle is a wooden cross piece hollowed on the inner side so as to fit the curvature of the barrel. If very heavy barrels are to be lifted the handle should be from six to twelve inches longer, so as to get extra leverage when lifting.

COLD FRAMES MORE POPULAR

Great Many Gardeners Have Realized It Is Profitable to Grow Some Vegetables Under Sash.

Frames are used much more largely in all parts of the country than a few years ago, notwithstanding the fact that greenhouse construction has been more active. A great many gardeners have realized that it pays to grow some vegetables under sash-foot sash. This makes it a good business proposition and when frames are used on a large scale too much care cannot be exercised in the preparation of the soil. It should be fine, fairly level and contain liberal amounts of sand and humus. If to be used in the summer, the cross-bars should be easily removed so that wheel-hoes or horse cultivators can be used without difficulty, running from end to end of the long frames. The sash should fit snugly on the side boards so that as little cold as possible will be admitted under the sash. Lettuce and radishes are especially desirable for frame culture.

Scabbies in Cattle.

The requirements relating to dips for scabbies in cattle have been that the tobacco dip should contain not less than five hundredths of one per cent. of nicotine and 2 per cent. of flowers of sulphur. Recently this order has been amended, permitting the use of the tobacco dip prepared from tobacco and suitable tobacco products, provided it contains no less than seven hundredths of one per cent. of nicotine. The tobacco dip of the new strength need not contain the sulphur.

Care of Small Fruits.

Fruit of small size on berry bushes is not always chargeable to poor varieties, but is usually due to poor culture and no pruning. Currants are largely borne on wood three or four years old. Wood that is older than this should be pruned out and enough young canes allowed to take their place. This may be done at any time after the fruit is ripe. Keep the plants well cultivated and fertilize with barnyard manure.

High-Class Protein Feed.

An acre of alfalfa will furnish more high-class protein feed than almost any other crop that is grown in the section where dairymen is followed to the best advantage.

THE parcel post business continues to grow, and especially on the rural routes. In some States the rural route carriers are quitting, as they are swamped, and cannot make the trips, on account of poor roads, and the Postoffice Department is demanding that the roads be put in condition, or the routes will be discontinued. Since the introduction of the parcel post, there has been a heavy increase in the demands for rural routes, but government inspectors are now much more careful, and are turning down a large per cent. of the applications, on account of the poor road conditions.

Greenville Basket Ball Team Bested.

Greenville boys were outplayed Saturday night, when they met the New Albany team, though a game fight was put up against odds, as one or two men were out and substitutes were played. The score was 29-33 in favor of the visiting team. Greenville has played twelve games this season, and has won eight of them, which puts them in the championship class.

The patient has the deepest sympathy of their many friends in the loss of their only child.

Electric Line all the Talk.

Muhlenberg County is stirred to activity over the proposed electric line, to cover the most densely populated section of the county, running from Central City to the "Bluff" on Green river, and to this place and Drakesboro, taking in the three principal towns in the county and most of the mining communities. People everywhere are favoring the enterprise, and lending hearty support in every way. Engineers are at work locating the line, and it is thought that active construction work will be started soon, and rushed at top speed, the promoters promising to have the road in operation next fall, unless extremely unfavorable conditions arise.

Kentucky is suffering from a wide area of smallpox, but in no section has the disease reached any great proportions.

Several turkey dinners have been given during the cold weather lately.

King Drags in Demand.

County Judge Rice, who at the beginning of the good roads movement was compelled to use his personal influence to induce farmers to take out the King drags supplied by the county, now reports that it is hard to keep a supply of the drags on hand, and that land owners are requesting the drags, under promise to use them without public expense, and the promise is being kept faithfully, even enthusiastically, in most cases. And the movement is just getting thoroughly launched, gaining rapidly in all directions wherever a drag is thoroughly and intelligently used. More than half a hundred King drags are being used in the county now.

With the Central City, Greenville & Drakesboro railroad, "Green River Line," Muhlenberg will be a strong contender for the banner in the matter of railroads in Kentucky.

With the thermometer standing at 10 degrees above zero Sunday morning, we had the coldest weather of the winter, but it was fair and fine.

Mr. Marvin Wells came down from Louisville for the week end, spending the time with home folks and friends.

M. C. L. Morgan, of Hopkinsville, has been here some days, visiting relatives and talking Florida lands as an investment for our people.

The electric line looks like a sure winner.

"The Green River Line" appears to be a go, and when completed will give us five distinct railroad lines in the county, surpassing any county in Western Kentucky in this as well as other things.

SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION

Yield to Vinol.

The medical profession do not believe that consumption is inherited, but a person may inherit a weakness or tendency to that disease.

A prominent citizen of Evansville, Ind., writes: "I was ill for two months with pulmonary trouble, and had the best of doctors; I had hemorrhages and was in a very bad way. Through the advice of a friend I tried Vinol, and I feel that it saved my life. It is all you recommend it to be. I believe it is the greatest medicine on earth. I have advised others to try Vinol, and they have had the same results." (Name furnished on request.)

Vinol soothes and heals the inflamed surfaces and allays the cough. Vinol creates an appetite, strengthens the digestive organs and gives the patient strength to throw off incipient pulmonary diseases.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. G. E. COUNTZLER, Druggist.

"DOWN IN DIXIE,"

A Play by Home Talent

Opera House, Thursday, Feb. 19

"Down in Dixie" is a war play in which the subject is treated in a fair and unprejudiced manner. The hero is from the North, and the heroine from the South, and both are splendid types of true-hearted Americans. A Southern villain and a Northern scoundrel each figure prominently in the story.

This play is under the auspices of the Greenville Cornet Band, and is strictly first-class in every respect. Come out and enjoy the evening, and help "Boost the Band".

P. S.—We also have a nigger.

HOT CUPPER DISKS

HOW HE SOLD THE MINE

By LEWIS AUBURY.

He was a large, raw-boned, good-natured kind of a fellow, with a shock of red hair that reached nearly to his shoulders. His general make-up proclaimed him to be the desert prospector.

He came to the city several months ago. From arriving he put up at a well-known downtown hotel and as he handed a sack of spec men and his gun over to the clerk he remarked: "Just ago!"

"Just ago!" he said, "a couple of days, an' I ain't neither where you make me look down, only I'd kinder like ter be on the fast floor, case o' fire, yet know."

Having been assured, he remarked to the clerk that he thought he would stroll around a bit.

He had scarcely reached the crossing before he was accosted by a man who had been seated in the hotel lobby and who had been an interested listener to his conversation with the clerk.

"Excuse me," he said, "but I have just learned of your arrival in the city, and knowing of your interest in mining affairs, through hearsay, I have taken the liberty of speaking to you regarding your proposition."

The bait was ample for our desert friend, and he forthwith began to declaim on the merits of his prospects.

"Well, yer see, my friend, me an' the boys hev some claims out by Canyon Springs, an' our powder an' grub is a-lyin' pretty low, an' as all o' them thought as I was the best-natured one in the bunch, an' they all knew I was too smart to be taken in by any of them sure-thing fellows, why, they just concluded to get together what capital there was in the camp and give it ter me, an' I was to take care o' it."

"What's say? What hev we got?" he asked. "Excuse me for a min', stranger; I feel so tickled. Yer see, I never thought as how it would be so easy, and here I am, gone and got some one interested in the very first rattle out of the box. Well, there's the Colorado, which is a true fisher vein that I hev traced for 14 miles, an' is 22 feet an' four inches wide, that will assay $83 per ton, and the fines' formashun yer ever set yer eyes on; an' there's the Golden Dream, an' its suthery extension, the Pipe Dream, which is a corker, and the riches' proposition of the lot, down on her ten-foot, an' she pays big from wall to wall."

"Oh, yer see, we hev plenty o' wood—plenty of it—an' water, too. Yer be looking fer mines and what'll I take? Oh, 'bout $100,000 fer the bunch, but if yer only want one or two, I'll come down."

"Oh, money's no object, and the bigger the better? Well, I jest know these claims are just what yer want, an' I know Mr. Reynolds an' the Pinkish students yer hev behind yer back'll be tickled clean to death when they know how lucky yer've bin in gittin' such a valuable property. Yes, I give yer a bond on it right erway, an' say, yer jest tellyer that them fellers and hev them send the money over to-morrow!"

After he had signed a number of mysterious documents that had been presented to him by his new-found friend, and had partaken of numerous and divers lemonades (?) he managed to find his way back to the hotel, and as he edged up to the counter, he exclaimed to the clerk:

"Put her ther, pard. I telt yer I was a crackin' joke. Jest sold a mine fer a mill'yun dollars. Nothin' slow 'bout me, eh? Met business iron' o' Rosechille. Goin' ter buy all my claims nex' week. Bigger money? No, sur. I let him hev ten dollars to send a cabul over tellin' them fellers what a fine mine I hev. He's all right. He's a-lyin' ter pay me back when the bank opens to-morrow. Shay, ole man, I guess I'll be makin' tracks fer the case and git up to my bunk. Say, jest tell the engineer what level I'm ter git off at, will yer, an' say, sen' a canteen up in case my coppers git hot."

And with a parting wave of the hand to the clerk, he managed to reach the elevator and was whisked to the "levels" above.

The embryo millionaire is still in town. I met him the other day. He has moved from the hotel and has found cheaper quarters. He thinks the air is bad in big hotels, and prefers to unroll his blankets on a river bottom, which he says is more comfortable. The "student" has not so far materialized, but notwithstanding his eye is not so bright nor his step so elastic, he still has faith in the visions of wealth that are to be his, which are conjured in his mind by sundry promoters.
